Date of photograph(s): November 2009,

"Thatched H-shaped house of which the extended rear part is older than the front. The front has a pedimented gable with vases and 20x20 sash, neo-classical end gables and corner pilasters. The bo-en-onder door with small pane fanlight and architrave with fluted pilasters is flanked by half sashes and 24x24 sashes, all with solid half shutters. The raised brick stoep has projecting steps and a pergola on plastered capped columns. The long rear part has two dormer gables with fixed 15-pane windows and half-hipped end gables. 6x6 door with sunrise fanlight and 6-panel door with 6-pane fanlight; 9 ...

"The Rhenish complex was acquired by the Rhenish Mission Society in 1832, by which time nearly all the buildings already existed. Most are on the 1817 town plan."
